Retention Basis and Retention Period for Records Confirming the Collection, Use, and Provision of Personal Location Information

. In accordance with Article 16(2) of the Act on the Protection and Use of Location Information, the company automatically records the confirmation logs regarding the collection, use, and provision of location information in its location information system, and, in principle, retains such records for six (6) months from the time of recording.
. Pursuant to Article 23 of the same Act, the company retains personal location information for a period of three (3) months from the date of collection, within the scope of purposes agreed upon by the customer and for the resolution of customer complaints. After three months, the information shall be promptly destroyed.
. However, if retention is required under other applicable laws such as the Framework Act on National Taxes, the Corporate Tax Act, or the Value-Added Tax Act, the company shall retain the information in accordance with those laws. If a specific service sets a different retention period, separate consent will be obtained from the customer. The service-specific retention period can be found in the appendix to the Terms of Use for Location-Based Services.
. In accordance with Article 24(4) of the same Act, if the customer withdraws all or part of their consent, the collected personal location information and related confirmation records shall be promptly destroyed.

Methods of Collecting Personal Location Information

. The company collects personal location information using mobile devices, base station locations, GPS information, Access Points (AP), internet IP addresses, RFID tags, USIM cards, and other location information collection systems (LBS platforms).

Use and Provision of Personal Location Information

. If the company provides personal location information to a third party designated by the customer, the company will immediately notify the customer via text message (SMS) or PUSH message of the recipient, the date and time of provision, and the purpose of provision each time.

※ Your consent is required for the minimum personal information necessary to use KT services.
